RYAN WHITE PART B CARE PROGRAM

SOUTH DAKOTA
DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH

1-800-592-1861

Managing

HIV infection is complicated, but new treatments can both improve the quality of your life and extend your life. To help you successfully manage your health, remember these tips:

See your doctor regularly.

Make appointments every 3-6 months, or as advised, to check your CD4+T cell count, viral load, health, and to discuss treatment and prevention strategies.

Be an active part of your health care team.

Tell your doctor about any problems and be sure your doctor explains concepts to you in such a way that you clearly understand your options.

Educate yourself.

The more you know about HIV infection and treatment, the better you will be able to judge the risks and benefits of your options.
