Background

Social determinates of health have been shown to account for as much as 80% of a person's health outcomes.¹ Meaning, the medical care an individual receives has far less influence on their overall wellbeing than other, external factors.²

Rural residents are even more susceptible to negative health outcomes as a result of barriers being compounded in rural areas.³ In South Dakota (SD), all but two counties are considered either rural or frontier. SD also has 13% of its households living below 100% of the federal poverty level. Reservations, of which SD has nine, experience still higher rates of poverty. Three counties which are each home to reservations, are amongst the highest poverty rates in the nation (Oglala Lakota (55.8%), Todd (52.2%), Mellette (49.1%)).^{4, 5, 6}

12.2% of SD residents under 65 years of age experience a lack of health insurance and 8.3% of residents have less than a high school diploma/GED. Additionally, two-thirds of the state is designated as a Health Professional Shortage Area by the federal government.⁵

Purpose

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) has prioritized three areas for Healthy People 2030: social determinates of health, health equity, and health literacy.⁷

One of South Dakota Department of Health's (SD DOH) guiding principles is to achieve health equity in all communities, while working toward the mission of working together to promote, protect, and improve health. The purpose of this funding opportunity is to address health equity and social determinates of health to improve health outcomes through the implementation of Nexus SD.

Nexus SD is a statewide collaboration of health care, human and social service providers sharing information using an integrated technology platform and referral system to coordinate whole-person care. The vision of Nexus SD is to streamline connection between multi-sector providers to address social needs and drive positive outcomes among populations at higher risk and that are underserved. Nexus SD is beneficial to our State in many ways:

- Individual Benefits:
 - Quicker connection to appropriate services
 - Telling their story only once
 - Additional needs identified through screenings

- Elevated level of care and satisfaction
- Partner Benefits:
 - Access to comprehensive resource database
 - Streamlined referrals and communication between providers
 - Shared client story promotes rapid identification of social needs
 - Organizations can more effectively serve community members
 - Access to outcome data for measuring impact
- Community Benefits:
 - Community-level data to inform policy, planning and investment
 - Identification of unmet needs and barriers to access services
 - Infrastructure more effectively serves community members
